Course Description

This course consists of two components: 1) The textual studies of a Tibetan philosophical treatise, and 2) the study of secondary academic literature on the topic.

1) The Textual Study

This concise philosophical text by Mipham Rinpoche presents a clear and penetrating analysis of ultimate reality through the lens of Buddhist reasoning. Using the metaphor of a "sword," it describes wisdom (prajñā) as the tool that cuts through ignorance and mistaken views about the nature of self and phenomena. The work systematically examines and refutes conceptual fabrications, demonstrating the emptiness (śūnyatā) of inherent existence while preserving the validity of conventional experience. Ultimately, it guides the reader toward a non-dual understanding in which clarity and emptiness are inseparable, encouraging direct insight rather than mere intellectual grasp.

2) The Academic Component

The MA academic component consists of academic research and seminar-style meetings. There will be three seminar meetings during the semester. The exact times and dates of these meetings will be decided at the start of the semester. Since the purpose of the course is to train students in academic methods in preparation for preparing their MA thesis, there will be specialized readings assigned for each of the meetings. Students are required to come to the meetings with a reflection paper based on the readings. The course concludes with a research paper
