A non-refundable Admission Fee must be paid for all degree programs and non-credit study once you have been accepted into the program and must be made within two weeks of acceptance in order to secure your place in the program.

The summer program fee is due in full, two weeks after acceptance into the program. The summer program fee includes a welcome reception and farewell dinner, tuition, lunches at the Utpala café when classes are in session, and day trips within the Kathmandu Valley. The study fee for the Buddhist studies summer intensive program also includes all expenses for the Asura retreat at the end of the course*

Colloquial Tibetan and Nepali summer intensives offer a homestay option. Please note that the homestay fee only covers an extra administrative charge of $100 for arranging the accommodation. Rent and meals (approximately $230 per month) are determined directly with the homestay family and paid by the student to the homestay family.

While every effort is made to keep this information up to date, prices are subject to adjustment in light of changes in regulations or policy.
